

Follow

In this quiet moment you could hear a pin drop Silently, embarrassed, we turn our heads
Does he realise just how humiliating
How absurd his actions make him appear?
God the King of glory, God the Lord of heaven
God the One before whom each knee shall bow
Jesus, God incarnate, angels now confessing
Jesus Christ, the Master, kneels at our feet

*The Servant King is here, not who we were expecting Quietly he turns the world on its head
The Servant King is here, now will we choose to follow Wash each other's feet as Jesus has led?*

In our selfish moments, proud and full of envy
We believe that Jesus owes us his grace
Gently he reminds us how there are no servants
Greater than their Master, Teacher and Lord
Will we follow Jesus, drink his cup of suffering
Will we walk the path to his cross of death?
Will we shine the Christ-light to a world in anguish
Serve the 'unimportant', kneel at their feet?

The Servant King is here...

Words and Music by Monique Lisbon
© MonoMusic 2000

This song comes from the CD and songbook
Scars of Grace
(© MonoMusic 2000)

To order this product,
click here